Modern Technologies and Family Research

What is Historiography?

How do we apply it in our family research? Uses of DNA in research.

Microhistory Uncovering the experiences of individuals and how they interacted with others and with the broader economic, demographic, political and social structures around them.

Debra will conclude with her research: a microhistory of a hidden child born in 1943 in the ghetto of Piotrkow Trybunalski, and how DNA evidence uncovered the assistance and cooperation with the local non-Jewish population during World War II.

Members will receive their Zoom link in the week prior to Oct. 26.
