Genealogy Tip of the Month: Periodically review your research and notes

Review notes to:

1. Address areas you overlooked previously and gain better perspective.
2. Apply information you have learned since your initial research that makes previously skipped sources or facts relevant – research is a cumulative process.
4. Fill in research gaps – update your documentation, go back and cite missing sources, reexamine previous assumptions and conclusions.

Sample of some resources I have used (not comprehensive):
- Ancestry.com – new records continually added
- FamilySearch.org – digitized records and indexing (including 1905 NY Census)
- JewishGen.org - databases
- Digitized records
  - Montreal city directories 1842-1977 – website is in French, collection in English or bilingual, depending on year http://bibnum2.bnquebec.ca/bna/lovell/
    - Both paid ProQuest historical newspapers (NYT, LAT, Chicago Tribune) and free digitized images
  - Library and Archives Canada
    - Genealogical collections include passenger lists, border entry forms, searchable naturalization registers, census images (not indexed) http://www.collectionscanada.gc.ca/genealogy/022-908.011-e.html

Staying up to date on new sources:

- Blogs
- Cyndi’s List
- JewishGen Discussion Group mailing list
- Jan Meisels Allen updates

©2011 Marion Werle